In a place where people have been disappearing for years, a little girl gets lost in the woods. Meet the man who saves her life. On a late summer morning in 1958, Phil Stapleton discovers and rescues five-year-old Brittany Duncan after she spends two days lost deep in the Kentucky woods. Two months later, when a tree branch crashes through the rickety trailer where Brittany lives, Phil takes the girl and her mother under his roof. What follows is a decade of mystery, terror, violence, and tragedy, with no escape in sight. A Circle in the Woods employs an experimental approach to storytelling. With limited punctuation, a snapshot plot structure, and mystery at every turn, its technique will either deliver you an enriching, spellbinding experience or send you running for the hills. Take a peek, and decide for yourself: Who is Phil Stapleton?

Death in the Woods is presented as a first-person narrative by an unreliable narrator, who tells the story of an old woman, Mrs. The dogs, that had been following her, run around her in circles, then rip the
