

Nightcomers: Eight Eerie Stories (Susan Prices Haunting Stories Book 2)

The beautiful and the uncanny A young blacksmith is hired to spend Midsummers Night in a lonely field, near an ancient mound, to shoe with silver the horses of those who come by A beautiful Englishman drives his Italian mistress to suicide and after her death she follows her faithless lover home In the echoing, eerie surroundings of an out-of-hours shopping mall, a lonely cleaner falls in love with a beautiful, hungry stranger A family gather at the bedside of a dying girl, and, out of the night, something comes knocking at the window A man walks home, in the early hours, on a freezing night, along lanes haunted by the Death-Dog A young actor playing James Dean in a bio-pic, hates that people are impressed by his looks rather than his talent. Then hes offered a lift in a car silver sports car with the number, 130. A holiday cottage holds memories of despair And a ghost features in a gentle Christmas story. Eight eerie, haunting stories of the supernatural from an expert story-teller and award-winning writer. Beautifully uncanny... Praise for NIGHTCOMERS from Philip Pullman Every tale shows the quality of the imagination, and the accuracy of the telling. What most impresses is the authority of Susan Prices voice: exact, rich or spare when necessary, able to evoke the Past without falsity, and the present without effort.
