

Photographing Kenyas Backyard

Pamela Peters is a freelance wildlife photographer, videographer, lecturer, and a college professor. She lets her camera tell the story creating images that allow her viewers to be caught up in the event with her. She has a passion for travel and storytelling. In 2013 that passion, along with some help, led her to take her first trip to Africa in order to photograph some of Kenyas Parks and Reserves. Follow her journey in pictures as she takes you across Kenya to Amboseli, where work is on going to protect herds of elephants. Travel to Samburu, where several species of antelope roam free and the endangered Grevys zebra can be found. Experience Masai Mara, where large herds of wildebeest roam as part of their journey through the yearly cycle of the Great Migration. Learn about the landscape. Read some of Pamelas stories about how she got the pictures. See the wildlife that Africa has to offer including elephants, giraffe, lions, leopards, cheetahs, zebras, rhinos, and many more. Take the safari in photographs.
